Located in Chester County at 1799 Horseshoe Pike in Honey Brook, Pennsylvania, ABLE's newest branch is well situated to deliver equipment throughout Central PA.

"Key's expertise and familiarity with the Central Pennsylvania market was certainly one of the factors that helped us in our decision-making. I look forward to partnering with all of Key's talented employees," Laganas added.

"From a strategic perspective, it will allow us to continue to serve as a trusted provider of aerial lifts, telehandlers, forklifts, and mini-cranes for Key's current commercial and industrial clients," said Chris Pera, ABLE's Chief Operating Officer. "We'll be able to offer excavation, portable power, air, heat, and traffic control equipment, plus specialty equipment such as rotating telehandlers, and under-bridge access platforms.
